QUESTION 5

A merchant has two country sites, US and France. The Site Base URL for the US site is www.example.com. They plan to use a subfolder to differentiate the French site's URL. For example, they could set it to www.example.com/france. What is a potential consequence of using the fr locale code as the subfolder for the French site's URL, such as www.example.com/fr, instead?

- A. Commerce Cloud does not understand locale codes when used as a subfolder, leading to 404 not found messages in the shopper browser.
- B. If the US site is configured to have French as an additional language, the system cannot tell if www.example.com/fr is the French site or the French translation of the English site.
- C. Commerce Cloud has logic built in to avoid any confusion between subfolders and locales, editing the URL when generating the page to differentiate between the locale and the subfolder name.
- D. You receive an error message on the Settings page when setting the Site Base URL to a recognized locale, preventing you from using it as the subfolder.
